

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10
11
12
13
14
15
16
17
18
19
20
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
CENTRAL DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA
SOUTHERN DIVISION

CHROMADEX, INC.,	)
	)	Case No.: SACV 16-02277-CJC(DFMx)
	)
Plaintiff,	)
v.	)	ORDER DENYING ELYSIUM'S
	)	MOTION FOR REVIEW OF THE
ELYSIUM HEALTH, INC., and MARK	)	MAGISTRATE JUDGE'S ORDER
MORRIS,	)	MODIFYING THE PROTECTIVE
	)	ORDER [Dkt. 398]
Defendants.	)
	)
<hr/>	)
	)
ELYSIUM HEALTH, INC.,	)
	)
Counterclaimant,	)
v.	)
	)
CHROMADEX, INC.,	)
	)
Counter-Defendant.	)
	)
<hr/>	)

1 I. INTRODUCTION & BACKGROUND

2
3 Under three separate contracts, ChromaDex supplied Elysium with nicotinamide
4 riboside (“NR”), which ChromaDex sold under the trade name Niagen, and pterostilbene
5 (“PT”), which ChromaDex sold under the trade name pTeroPure. (Dkt. 295-1 ¶ 1.)
6 Elysium uses those ingredients in its dietary supplement called Basis. (Id. ¶¶ 4–5.) In 7 this case, each party alleges that the other breached the contracts governing the parties’
8 relationships. ChromaDex also asserts claims for trade secret misappropriation, breach of 9 confidentiality agreements, and breach of fiduciary duty related to a former ChromaDex
10 Vice President, Mark Morris, who went to work for Elysium. (See Dkt. 369.)

11
12 ChromaDex and Elysium (without Mark Morris) are also litigating in New York
13 (the “New York Action”). There, the parties assert false advertising, unfair competition,
14 and deceptive business practices claims against each other, and Elysium also asserts a
15 copyright infringement counterclaim against ChromaDex. (Dkt. 398 [hereinafter “Mot.”]
16 at 3.) The claims in the New York Action relate to the same NR-supply relationship
17 between the parties that forms the center of the litigation here. For example, ChromaDex
18 alleges in New York that Elysium falsely advertised that the NR and PT it uses in Basis
19 are FDA-approved, but really only ChromaDex’s NR and PT were so approved, and 20 Elysium was not using ChromaDex’s NR and PT at the time. (Dkt. 404 [hereinafter
21 “Opp.”] at 3.) As another example, Elysium alleges in New York that ChromaDex’s NR
22 contained acetamide, a carcinogen, meaning that when Elysium resold that NR in its 23 product Basis, it violated California’s Proposition 65. (Id.)

24
25 The protective order in this case provides that documents produced in this case that
26 are marked Confidential, Highly Confidential – Attorney’s Eyes Only, or Outside 27 Counsel Only, “shall be used . . . only for the purpose of this Action (including any 28 appeal), and not for any other purpose.” (Dkt. 180 § 13.) ChromaDex sought to modify

1 that protective order so that documents produced in this case could be used in the New
2 York case as well. (See Dkt. 398-4 [ChromaDex’s letter brief]; Dkt. 398-3 [Elysium’s
3 letter brief].)

4
5 At the hearing on ChromaDex’s request, it became clear that the principal basis for 6 Elysium’s opposition was that Elysium inadvertently produced documents in this case
7 that it does not want to be discoverable in the New York Action. (See Dkt. 405-2 at 7.)
8 As to those documents, Magistrate Judge McCormick explained, “We’ve been around the 9 bend on those documents a number of times before, and . . . there’s just no way to 10 clawback documents that shouldn’t have been produced in the first place.” (Id. at 7–8.)
11 He further explained that if the inadvertently-produced documents “are purely harassing”
12 or similar, they will not be found relevant in the New York Action. (Id. at 8.)

13
14 Judge McCormick found that this case and the New York Action are “related and 15 collateral,” and, applying Foltz v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co., 331 F.3d 1122 (9th Cir.
16 2003), granted ChromaDex’s request and entered the Second Amended Protective Order.
17 (Id. at 8–10.) The protective order now provides that documents produced in this case
18 that are marked Confidential, Highly Confidential – Attorney’s Eyes Only, or Outside
19 Counsel Only, “shall be used . . . only for the purpose of this Action or . . . the New York
20 Action . . . (including any appeals), and not for any other purpose.” (Dkt. 395.)

21
22 Elysium moves for review of Judge McCormick’s decision pursuant to Federal 23 Rule of Civil Procedure 72(a). (Mot.) The Motion is DENIED.<sup>1</sup>

24
25 //

26
27
28 <sup>1</sup> Having read and considered the papers presented by the parties, the Court finds these matters appropriate for disposition without a hearing. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 78; Local Rule 7-15. Accordingly, the hearing set for January 27, 2020 at 1:30 p.m. is hereby vacated and off calendar.

1 III. LEGAL STANDARD

2
3 A district judge must “consider timely objections and modify or set aside” any part
4 of a magistrate judge’s order that “is clearly erroneous or contrary to law.” Fed. R. Civ.
5 P. 72(a). “The magistrate’s factual determinations are reviewed for clear error, and the 6 magistrate’s legal conclusions are reviewed to determine whether they are contrary to 7 law.” Perry v. Schwarzenegger, 268 F.R.D. 344, 348 (N.D. Cal. 2010). The latter
8 standard is met when the ruling “fails to apply or misapplies relevant statutes, case law,
9 or rules of procedure.” Defazio v. Wallis, 459 F. Supp. 2d 159, 163 (E.D.N.Y 2006)
10 (citation and quotes omitted). The district court’s review of “whether the Magistrate
11 Judge ruled ‘contrary to law’ is de novo rather than deferential.” Coleman v. Diaz, 2014
12 WL 1795157, at *3 (C.D. Cal. Mar. 11, 2014); see Perry, 268 F.R.D. at 348.

13
14 The Ninth Circuit “strongly favors access to discovery materials to meet the needs
15 of parties engaged in collateral litigation.” Foltz, 331 F.3d at 1131 (citing Beckman
16 Indus. v. Int’l Ins. Co., 966 F.2d 470, 475 (9th Cir. 1992), cert. denied, 506 U.S. 868).
17 “Where reasonable restrictions on collateral disclosure will continue to protect an 18 affected party’s legitimate interests in privacy, a collateral litigant’s request to the issuing 19 court to modify an otherwise proper protective order so that collateral litigants are not 20 precluded from obtaining relevant material should generally be granted.” Id. at 1132.

21
22 Although they are generally granted, such requests are not granted automatically.
23 Id. Rather, the court considering modification makes a “rough estimate” of the relevance
24 of the protected discovery to the collateral proceedings, and weighs “the countervailing 25 reliance interest of the party opposing modification against the policy of avoiding 26 duplicative discovery.” Id. at 1133. This reliance interest is considerably less as to 27 blanket protective orders, since those orders are by their very nature “overinclusive.” Id.
28 Where a protective order is modified, the court does not decide whether the collateral

1 litigants will ultimately obtain the discovery materials. Id. That determination must be
2 made by the court overseeing the collateral matter. Id.

3 4 IV. DISCUSSION

5 6 A. Review of Judge McCormick’s Order

7
8 Judge McCormick made a “rough estimate” of the relevance of the protected
9 discovery to the collateral proceedings, and determined that this case and the New York
10 Action are “related and collateral.” See Foltz, 331 F.3d at 1133; (Dkt. 405-2 at 9). This 11 was correct. There is significant overlap in both the parties involved and the facts and 12 issues between this case and the New York Action. See Foltz, 331 F.3d at 1132
13 (explaining that relevance hinges “on the degree of overlap in facts, parties, and issues 14 between the suit covered by the protective order and the collateral proceedings”);
15 Cummins-Allison Corp. v. SBM Co., 2013 WL 12250448, at *2 (D. Haw. Nov. 8, 2013)
16 (granting modification of protective order where, “[w]hile the Court acknowledges that 17 the actions are not identical, there is significant overlap in facts and issues”). Given that
18 the protective order at issue here was a blanket order, the countervailing reliance interest
19 is low. In addition, the Ninth Circuit has recognized that requests such as this one 20 “should generally be granted.” Foltz, 331 F.3d at 1132. Judge McCormick’s decision to 21 modify the protective order was not clearly erroneous or contrary to law.

22
23 Elysium argues that Judge McCormick’s order is contrary to Foltz and should 24 therefore be vacated. (Mot. at 5.) Specifically, Elysium argues that “[r]ather than merely 25 lifting the protective order as a roadblock to production of documents in the [New York]
26 Action, the Modification Order purports to decide the discovery dispute over whether 27 Elysium must produce in the [New York] Action all the documents it produced in this
28 action.” (Id. at 5–6.) Elysium reads the Second Amended Protective Order as a “blank

1 check . . . purporting to authorize the use of the entirety of the discovery in this case in 2 the [New York] Action,” “regardless of the [New York] Court’s performance of its 3 gatekeeping function under Foltz”—i.e. whether the New York court decides the 4 documents are relevant or not. (Id. at 6–7.) Accordingly, Elysium proposes that the 5 Second Amended Protective Order read instead that discovery documents “shall be used .
6 . . . only for the purpose of this Action or, to the extent stipulated by the producing party or 7 found by the Court to be relevant and discoverable . . . the New York Action.”
8 (Dkt. 398-5.)

9
10 Elysium misunderstands Judge McCormick’s order. Judge McCormick did not 11 order that ChromaDex may use every document produced in discovery in this case in the 12 New York Action. Indeed, he said explicitly that if any of the inadvertently-produced
13 documents “are purely harassing” or similar, the New York court will not find them
14 relevant, and ChromaDex therefore will not be able to use them in the New York Action.
15 (Dkt. 405-2 at 8.) Rather, the Second Amended Protective Order means only that if the 16 parties use any documents produced in this case with the relevant designations, they may 17 use those documents only in this case or in the New York case. Indeed, if Elysium’s 18 reading were correct, it would mean that every document produced in this case with the 19 relevant designations may be used in this case. That is not so—only documents that are 20 relevant and otherwise admissible may be used. Nor would it be true, then, of the New 21 York Action. Accordingly, Judge McCormick did only “lift[] the protective order as a 22 roadblock to production of documents in the [New York] Action.” (Mot at 5–6.)
23 Elysium’s Motion is therefore DENIED.

24 25 B. ChromaDex’s Request for Fees

26
27 ChromaDex asks the Court to award the fees it incurred filing its opposition
28 because Elysium (1) failed to comply with Local Rule 7-3 in bringing the Motion, instead

1 relying on the hearing before Judge McCormick to satisfy the pre-filing meet-and-confer
2 requirement, (2) failed to present the entire record, including the hearing transcript to the 3 Court, (3) based the Motion on arguments not expressly presented to Judge McCormick,
4 and (4) failed to address pertinent legal authority cited by ChromaDex before Magistrate
5 Judge McCormick.

6
7 As authority for awarding fees, ChromaDex cites Federal Rule of Civil Procedure
8 26(c), which governs protective orders and states that “Rule 37(a)(5) applies to the award
9 of expenses.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 26(c)(3). Rule 37(a), however, appears to govern payment
10 of expenses relating to motions for orders compelling disclosure or discovery, which does 11 not appear to apply here. ChromaDex cites no authority holding otherwise. Indeed, the 12 cases ChromaDex cites relate to district court review under Rule 72(a) of magistrate
13 rulings on motions to compel. See Blair v. CBE Grp., Inc., 2014 WL 4658731, at *3
14 (S.D. Cal. Sept. 17, 2014); Schueneman v. Arena Pharm., Inc., No. 3:10-CV-1959-CAB-
15 BLM, 2017 WL 3587961, at *1 (S.D. Cal. Aug. 21, 2017).

16
17 The Court agrees with Judge McCormick that the disposition of the motion to 18 amend the protective order was “easy,” (Dkt. 405-2 at 4), and finds its decision on this
19 motion to be similarly easy. The Court is also concerned with some of the failings
20 ChromaDex points out. However, the Court is not persuaded that an award of fees is 21 appropriate at this time.

22
23 //

24 //

25 //

26 //

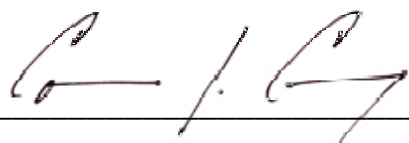

27 //

28 //

1 V. CONCLUSION

2
3 For the foregoing reasons, Elysium’s motion for review of Judge McCormick’s
4 December 6, 2019 order is DENIED. ChromaDex’s request for fees is also DENIED.

5
6 DATED: January 16, 2020

7
8 _____
9 CORMAC J. CARNEY
10 UNITED STATES DISTRICT JUDGE